SELECTED LIST OF BOOKS FOR THE SMALL LAW SCHOOL LIBRARY

HELEN S. MOYLAN

Law Librarian, University of Iowa

THE article, of which this is in the nature of a revision, was first published in October, 1928.¹ In the ten years since then there have been several changes in the requirements set forth by the Association of American Law Schools for libraries of member schools as well as some new developments in law book publishing which affect libraries. The present requirements of the Association are as follows:

"6. Commencing September 1, 1932, it shall own a law library of not less than ten thousand volumes, which shall be so housed and administered as to be readily available for use by students and faculty. Commencing September 1, 1940, it shall have, in addition to the four instructors specified in Section 7 of this Article, a qualified librarian whose principal activities are devoted to the development and maintenance of an effective library service.

"Commencing September 1, 1932, for additions to the library in the way of continuations and otherwise, there shall be spent over any period of five years at least ten thousand dollars, of which at least fifteen hundred dollars shall be expended each year. Commencing September 1, 1939, such library shall include substantially the following:

"1. The published reports of appellate decisions of the state in which the school is located, together with commonly used editions of the statutes and digests.

"2. The published reports prior to the Reporter System of decisions of the courts of last resort in at least one-half of the states of the United States with reasonably up-to-date editions of statutes in one-fourth of the states.

"3. The published reports of the decisions of the United States Supreme Court with the generally used editions of federal statutes and digests.

"4. The National Reporter System complete.

"5. Leading up-to-date publications in the way of general digests, encyclopedias, and treatises of accepted worth.

"6. At least ten legal periodicals of recognized worth, complete with current numbers.

"7. The English reports covered by the so-called reprint, together with the law reports to date."²

It is important to notice that what were formerly mere recommendations of the Executive Committee have now been incorporated as part of Article 6. Since 1928 the requirement that the library should contain 7,500 volumes and spend at least $1,000 a year has been raised to require a 10,000 volume library and an expenditure of at least $1,500 a year. In one instance the requirements have been decreased, namely, in the number of state statutes recommended. It is now only necessary to have them for one-fourth of the states instead of one-half as formerly. On the other hand, the number of periodicals required has been raised from six to ten.

Probably the most important additional requirement is that, in order to qualify for admission to the Association after September 1, 1940, a law school must have a "qualified librarian." This has been an urgent need of law schools for a long time.³ It has been a requirement for approved medical school libraries for years. The smaller law school libraries have been largely left to shift for themselves under student care with whatever consideration a faculty supervisor found time to give them. There can be no question that a person who devotes his time and interest chiefly to creating, organizing and developing the library can rapidly increase its efficiency and usefulness. There are many ways in which an alert librarian can save money on desirable books, thus increasing the purchasing power of the library dollar, and through proper cataloging and knowledge of the books make them completely available.⁴

It is to be hoped that deans in making appointments to library positions will take into consideration the value of library training and experience and will not appoint unqualified persons. There is now available a special summer school course for those who are unfamiliar with the work of law libraries and who desire to prepare for positions in them.⁵

Before taking up the specific requirements in the way of books, certain general aspects of the housing of the books and estimates of costs may be of value to the inexperienced librarian. First as to shelving. Modern adjustable steel shelving equipment is much to be preferred to wooden shelves. Steel shelves bear the weight of the books better, are more easily adjustable, and make the books less subject to depredations of insects such as the silver fish which like to feed on paper and glue. It should be kept in mind that law books are, as a general rule, larger and heavier than ordinary books, and therefore standards of measurement used in other types of libraries are not suitable for law books. An average of six books to the linear foot is a practicable gauge to use in estimating the amount of shelving required.

In 1928 it was estimated that the 7,500 volume library suggested would cost about $25,000. The cost of law books has increased considerably since then, particularly the cost of current statutes and treatises, and of course the accretion of ten years of continuing reports, periodicals and laws calls for a considerable expenditure. The statistical reports⁶ of law school libraries, covering the year 1935-36, include figures for the number of books purchased during the year and the sums expended for them for 18 libraries in the group of libraries having 14,999 volumes or less. An average cost per book drawn from these figures amounts to approximately $4.50. Using the sum of $4.50 a volume, therefore, as a fair average, the addition of 2,500 volumes to the 7,500 volume library previously estimated at $25,000 would bring the cost today to somewhere near $36,250. Fortunate purchases of state reports and used sets of other series might reduce this cost somewhat.

We turn now to the specific book requirements of the Association of American Law Schools.

The first requirement is the reports of decisions of the state in which the school is located, together with commonly used editions of the statutes and digests.

At least one complete set of the reports in the official edition should be a first purchase. One duplicate set, at least in part and of the current decisions, will be provided in the appropriate unit of the Reporter System. This should be supplemented by the reports of the state up to the Reporter. As many other sets as the number of students and the use made of the books would indicate to be desirable may be purchased from time to time, but duplicates should ordinarily be bought cautiously until there is a fairly extensive collection of the fundamental material in other fields.

Ordinarily it would be advisable for the library to secure an annotated set of the statutes of its own state, where one has been published. Extra copies may be supplied in the less expensive unannotated form, if there is one.

In addition to the local digest, the local citations are important acquisitions. The librarian should also add from time to time, as the books can be obtained at reasonable prices, all possible local legal publications, such as the reports of the state administrative commissions, the opinions of the attorney general of the state, local practice books, and such local encyclopedias of law as are found in some states, as, for example, California Jurisprudence and Texas Jurisprudence.

Requirement two is the published reports, prior to the Reporter System, of decisions of the courts of last resort in at least one-half the states, with reasonably up-to-date editions of statutes in one-fourth of the states.

Requirement four is the complete National Reporter System.⁷ The Reporter System, published by the West Publishing Company of St. Paul, Minnesota, contains the decisions of all the courts of last resort of the states as well as the decisions of the United States Supreme Court. It also publishes the reports of several of the lower state courts and of the United States district courts and circuit courts of appeal. Each unit in the series is kept currently to date by advance sheets issued weekly, with the exception of the Supreme Court Reporter, which appears twice a month.

The first unit to purchase is the Reporter which contains the decisions of the courts of the state in which the school is located. Next to this in importance among the State Reporters is the Northeastern because it contains the reports of the most cited states, such as Massachusetts, New York and Illinois. The others should be purchased in the order of their relative importance to the library, either because they cover neighboring states, or states where the conditions of life and the chief industries are similar.

The Supreme Court Reporter, the Federal Reporter and Federal Supplement will be needed very early, particularly now when federal government activity is so closely affecting the interests of the several states.

To fulfill the second requirement of the Association it will be necessary to buy the early state court reports which are often quite expensive, especially those of states where little reprinting of reports has been done. It would be well to avoid in the beginning the very expensive states as they are not necessarily the most useful or most cited. It may be noted also that four states are reported from the beginning in the Reporters, namely, North and South Dakota, Arizona and Oklahoma, including Indian Territory, and that some other states need only a very few volumes to complete them to the Reporter System. Tables of the Reporters showing with what volume of the state reports they begin will be found at the end of this article.

While they are not listed among the requirements there are some important sets of annotated cases which would greatly enhance the usefulness of the library. The current series is the set known as American Law Reports. It is a selection of leading cases with annotations, or briefs, on important points of law involved in them. Earlier reports of this type are Lawyers Reports Annotated and American Decisions, American Reports and American State Reports. The current set, at least, should be purchased as soon as funds permit, and the others added from time to time.

In the field of statutory compilations the most outstanding developments have been the increasing frequency of supplements and the so-called permanent or lifetime editions which are annotated and kept to date with annual or quarterly supplements which fit into pockets on the inside back cover of each volume. As a general rule, this type of statute would be too expensive both in first cost and upkeep for the small library. The statutes of its own state would, of course, form an exception to this statement. They range in price from $150 up and cost to keep up from $10 to $20 annually. It is recommended, therefore, that the less expensive unannotated editions of state statutes, often published officially by the state, be used to fulfill the requirement of statutes of one-fourth of the states. In some states there is a provision for constant revision, with frequent low-priced new editions of the compiled laws. Iowa and Wisconsin furnish examples of this. In both of these states, also, there are separate volumes of annotations for the statutes which may be purchased at reasonable prices.

To keep the compiled laws to date the library will depend upon the session laws which are published after each legislative assembly, annually or biennially. Wherever legislative authority can be obtained, arrangements should be made for the exchange of session laws, and likewise of the compilations, with the state universities of other states.⁸

Requirement three. Complete sets of the official edition of the United States Supreme Court reports are very expensive, and while it is highly desirable to have a set in this form, the limited budget requires the choice of a less high-priced edition. The Supreme Court Reporter, already mentioned in connection with the complete National Reporter System, provides the decisions of the court from volume 106 of the official edition down to date. The earlier reports can be supplied by the same publishers in thirteen books, thus making a complete set. Another very well-liked edition is the Lawyers' Edition, which is a complete reprint of all the cases. It combines, as does the Supreme Court Reporter, several volumes of the official edition, in one book, it retains the official paging, and is annotated. There is also a photographic reprint of the official edition, which, through a reduction in the size of type, has made possible the combination of several volumes in one.

An edition of the United States Code was published by the Government Printing Office in one compact volume in 1934, and it is supplemented regularly after each term of Congress. It is not annotated. Its cost is low. There are three annotated sets of the Code.⁹ They run into many volumes and cost, naturally, a great deal more than the official unannotated edition. If the budget can be stretched to include one of the annotated sets, it would be worth while to get it, in view of the great importance of federal legislation.

Since the Code is only prima facie evidence of the law, a library should endeavor to obtain a complete set of the Statutes at Large as soon as possible. An alternative is to begin with the Revised Statutes of 1874 and carry the Statutes at Large from that date.

There are two federal digests to suggest, namely, the United States Supreme Court Reports Digest, published by the Lawyers Cooperative Publishing Company, which was originally put out in ten volumes in 1928-30, and is kept up to date by annual pocket parts, and the Supreme Court Reporter Digest in five volumes. Since the latter covers the reports only from volume 106, and is based on the American Digest System which is to be included in its entirety in the 10,000 volume library, it would be preferable to get the first named digest.

In requirement five we get away from the strictly source material and begin to develop the secondary. The leading digest is the American Digest System which digests all the decisions of the highest courts of all the states in the Union as well as of the United States Supreme Court. Many of the lower courts are included in its scope also, particularly the federal district courts and circuit courts of appeal. The Digest begins with the earliest period of American case law, and through its several units brings the digests of decisions down to date. The first unit, called the Century Digest, covers the period from 1658 to 1896, and is followed by the Decennials through the Fourth which brings the cases down to 1936. The current series is known as the General Digest. This complete digest system is indispensable to the law library. It furnishes not only a digest of all points decided, but through its complete tables of cases and tables of popular names of cases and abbreviations affords much useful and not otherwise easily available information. It is not necessary for the small library to buy local digests, except for its own state.

There are two outstanding general legal encyclopedias. Both of them are now in the process of issuing new editions which will take several years to complete. Corpus Juris and Corpus Juris Secundum, the new edition, plan to cover the entire appellate court case law of the United States. Corpus Juris Secundum will not replace the original set but will supplement it by consolidating the later developments and restating where necessary, referring the reader to Corpus Juris for the earlier collections of cases. The other encyclopedia is Ruling Case Law, called in its new form American Jurisprudence. This is a complete restatement and will entirely supersede the original Ruling Case Law. It is based on the selected annotated case series, together with the reports of the federal courts, and references are usually, therefore, to the more detailed annotations in American Law Reports, or similar series, rather than directly to the reports. Both of these encyclopedias are needed.

At the end of this article will be found a list of treatises which are recommended as being either outstanding in their respective fields, classics of the law, or useful textual treatments of important subjects.¹⁰ The list is arranged under the subjects which form the usual law school courses. It is not intended as a complete list of worth while treatises, but as a guide for early purchases, and one which will give a fairly representative coverage of the fields usually studied in law school.

Requirement six calls for "at least ten legal periodicals of recognized worth complete with current numbers." One of these should be the Index to Legal Periodicals because this will greatly increase the value of all the others since it opens up to the scholar the whole field of legal periodical literature, which is becoming more and more important. The cost of this valuable service currently is based upon the number of periodicals to which the library subscribes and so is not prohibitive to the small library. While its major usefulness will be as a key to the reviews in the library, yet it must not be overlooked that, through photostatic or microfilm services, articles from journals not at hand can be secured from larger libraries where they are on file.

Down to 1899 law reviews were indexed by Leonard A. Jones, in two volumes; 1898-1937 have been compiled by Frank E. Chipman in four volumes. Since 1908 the American Association of Law Libraries has issued the Index to Legal Periodicals which includes not only the leading articles but also the editorial notes and cases. Beginning in 1926 this index has been cumulated every three years to make it more serviceable. It is published bi-monthly and the July issue is a cumulation of the whole year's service.

¹⁰Grateful acknowledgment is made to the members of the faculty of the College of Law of the University of Iowa for their help in compiling this list.

The other legal periodicals would include the local law review if there is one, and the balance to be chosen from the following:

Harvard Law Review, 1887-date

Yale Law Journal, 1891-date

(Volumes 1-16 are out-of-print and excessively expensive, so it would be wise for the small library to begin with volume 17.)

Columbia Law Review, 1901-date

Michigan Law Review, 1902-date

Illinois Law Review, 1906-date

University of Pennsylvania Law Review, 1852-date

(The earlier volumes of this (v. 1-55) were called American Law Register.)

California Law Review, 1912-date

Iowa Law Review, 1915-date

Minnesota Law Review, 1917-date

Law Quarterly Review (English), 1885-date

American Bar Association Journal, 1915-date

Many of the early volumes of these periodicals are quite scarce and may prove difficult to obtain. It hardly seems necessary to call attention to the increasing use and value of periodical literature. Many of the new texts refer to periodical articles for the fuller development of topics touched upon, and the courts, too, are using them with greater frequency.

Requirement seven sets up the minimum standard for English reports. The English reports from 1378-1865 have been reprinted verbatim in the set known as English Reports Reprint. Not included in the reprint are the reports of the Bail and Bankruptcy courts, and certain of the so-called collateral reports. The set consists of 178 books which incorporate 838 volumes of reports. The Association permits it to be counted as 838 volumes.

The English reports are not issued officially, but the nearest thing to it seems to be the Law Reports series published by the Council of Law Reporting since 1865. "The reporters are appointed only with the approval of the judges concerned, and all the reports of cases are revised by the judges before publication."¹¹ These reports now number more than 550 volumes. They cover the principal courts, though in common with all English reports, they cannot be said to include all the decisions, so that it is still necessary to buy several different sets of reports if a more complete collection of English cases is desired.

There are two possible digests for the English reports—Mews' Digest and the English and Empire Digest. The latter is the more comprehensive as it digests the British Colonial, Scotch and Irish reports as well as the English ones. However, since the minimum requirements do not include any British reports save those of England it will be more economical to purchase Mews' Digest, as it is largely limited to English cases.

The leading English encyclopedia of law is Halsbury's Laws of England, the second edition of which is now nearly completed. A useful and more compact encyclopedia is the Encyclopedia of the Laws of England, the third edition of which was begun in 1937 and is still in progress.

Now that the requirements established by the Association of American Law Schools have been developed in detail, a miscellaneous group not provided for above will be considered. Of great importance are the citation books. Those published by the Frank Shepard Company are the standard ones and include volumes for each of the units of the National Reporter System as well as for most of the states. The library should first purchase the citation book which covers its own state and if possible the citator for the Reporter unit in which the state reports are included. After that the citations of the United States Supreme Court and later those for the federal system and the remaining units of the Reporter System. Beyond that it will probably not be possible to go because the cost of upkeep is considerable.

Law dictionaries have been listed with the recommended treatises. They are so essential that they will probably be among the very first purchases. Bouvier's Law Dictionary, combining as it does some of the features of an encyclopedia with those of a dictionary, is the most comprehensive. The one-volume dictionaries are very useful, and attention is called particularly to Balentine's because it gives the pronunciation of the words. A standard English dictionary, a Latin dictionary, and a general encyclopedia, will of course be available in the library.

The Annotated Case series were mentioned above, although they are not included in the Association's requirements. The series of subject reports, such as Public Utilities Reports, are not so important to the small library, since they are largely reprints of decisions which can be found in the regular series of reports. Their purchase can, therefore, be postponed.

In its future development the library will aim to complete to the Reporter System its collection of state reports; it will increase the number of its late statutory compilations, and it will add to its file of local books. It will continuously strengthen its treatise collection by the addition of useful old and new texts, and it will not overlook the desirability of extending the number of legal periodicals on its shelves. The addition of the decisions and reports of the more important federal commissions and boards should be given consideration in view of the rapid development of administrative law and the increasing frequency with which courses in this field are to be found in law school curricula.

MEMORIAL TO FRED Y. HOLLAND

"Their voices have been stilled, but our memory of them will always endure." When Bob Owens, Law Librarian of the San Francisco Law Library, spoke these moving words at the opening session of our Thirty-fourth Annual Meeting in San Francisco on July 5, 1939, none of us could have believed that our beloved friend and colleague, Fred Y. Holland, sitting with us in that meeting, was soon to join those other admirable men named by Mr. Owens as ones "we will not see any more."

Mr. Holland, Librarian of the Supreme Court Library of Colorado, and Secretary of the Colorado Bar Association, died at the age of forty-four in Denver on August 16, 1939. President of the American Association of Law Libraries in 1936-1937, Fred Holland had many warm friends among the law librarians throughout the country. He participated actively in the work of the law library Association and always attended its annual meetings.

A Kentuckian by birth, Mr. Holland had lived in Denver since 1918. After two years of distinguished service as Second Lieutenant with the Second Division of the A. E. F. during the world war, he went to Colorado to regain his health. He was graduated from the Westminster Law School and in 1923 was appointed Clerk of the Colorado State Senate. Following the adjournment of the Senate, he was named Librarian and served ably in that capacity until his death.

This tribute paid to him by one of his local colleagues in the law library profession is one of many other expressions of high regard for Fred Y. Holland: "He had a host of friends, made by his unfailing courtesy, graciousness of manner and sincere desire to serve and help others, and all of this was just a part of everyday living for him."

CURRENT COMMENTSRecent Law Library Publications

Three law library publications of great usefulness to the law library profession have been published recently. The Yale University Press released in September, 1939, Yale Law Library Publications, Number 8, entitled YALE LAW LIBRARY CLASSIFICATION, by Frederick C. Hicks, with directions for its use, notes on cataloguing practice and indexes, by Katherine Warren (preliminary edition). Copies may be obtained for $3.00 from the Yale University Press.

The School of Library Service of Columbia University has issued in mimeographed form two valuable aids to law librarians. These are: SUBJECT HEADINGS IN AMERICAN AND ENGLISH LAW, used in the dictionary catalog of the Columbia University Law Library, compiled under the direction of Miles O. Price, Law Librarian of Columbia University (preliminary edition), and CATALOGING PRACTICES OF THE LAW LIBRARY OF COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY, by Elsie Basset, Assistant Supervisor, Cataloging Department of Columbia University Library. The two publications may be obtained for $3.00 (for the two) from the Columbia School of Library Service.

In addition to the above law library publications, your Editor recommends the purchase by all law librarians of the recent Brookings Institution publication, GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS AND THEIR USE, by L. F. Schmeekebier, revised edition, 1939, $3.00

Recent Law Library Appointments

MARIAN GOULD, formerly assistant law librarian at the University of Washington, was appointed law librarian of the University of Utah on October 1. Miss Gould received the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Laws, and Bachelor of Arts in Library Science from the University of Washington. At Utah she succeeds Robert R. Willard, who was appointed law librarian for the academic year, 1939-40, but resigned to accept a position as an attorney in the Department of Justice in Washington, D. C.

HOWARD JAY GRAHAM is the new accessions librarian of the Los Angeles County Law Library. He was awarded the Master of Arts degree by the University of California and later was graduated from the School of Librarianship of that institution.

MILDRED L. DAGER, law librarian at Western Reserve University since 1928, was appointed on October 15 to the position of assistant law librarian of the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C. A graduate of Ohio Wesleyan, Miss Dager received the Bachelor of Laws degree from Western Reserve University in 1928.

RUTH HART has been chosen librarian of the School of Law, Western Reserve University, filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Dager. Prior to her appointment at Western Reserve, Miss Hart was a member of the editorial staff of the Banks-Baldwin Law Publishing Company in Cleveland. She is a graduate of Miami University and of the Law School of Western Reserve University.

MARGUERITE DORAN, who for several years was the law librarian of the Yakima County Law Library in Yakima, Washington, is now the law librarian of the University of San Francisco Law Library. On the recommendation of Miss Doran, this library was recently enrolled as an institutional member of the American Association of Law Libraries.

EUNICE COX, formerly reference librarian at Washington University, St. Louis, was recently appointed law librarian. She is a graduate of the Law School of Washington University and a member of the Bar of the State of Missouri.

MARY FRANCES HIGGINS, a graduate of Webster College and of the University of Illinois Library School, has been appointed cataloger on Miss Cox's staff at Washington University.

IRENE GELINAS, formerly law librarian at Washington University, accepted on September 1 the position of cataloger at Berea College, Berea, Kentucky.

KATHERINE BANWELL is now law librarian at Stanford University, succeeding Miss Beryl Harris who resigned in July to take the position of cataloger in the San Mateo County Library at Redwood City. Miss Banwell's assistant in the Stanford Law Library is Miss Desda Ahlburg.

ALVIN L. BETKE has been appointed librarian of the Supreme Court of Colorado to succeed the late Fred Y. Holland. Mr. Betke has practised law in Colorado for a number of years and in 1925-1928 served as Assistant District Attorney for Denver. At the time of his appointment as law librarian, he was an assistant on the staff of the Attorney General of Colorado.

Frances Lyon Addresses Law Library Association of Greater New York

THE LAW LIBRARY ASSOCIATION OF GREATER NEW YORK held its first dinner meeting of the present season on October 2, 1939, at the Therese Worthington Grant Restaurant. Thirty-seven members and guests were present.

The meeting proved to be most interesting and instructive, largely because of a valuable paper presented by Miss Frances D. Lyon, State Law Librarian of New York, who spoke on "New York Session Laws—Facts and Foibles." Miss Lyon's address will be published in an early number of the LAW LIBRARY JOURNAL.

The meeting concluded with the transaction of miscellaneous business, including the report of Alfred Lindsay of the New York University Law School and Chairman of the Association's Committee on Multiplicity of Legal Publications. The following resolution presented by Mr. Lindsay was adopted by the Association:

"Resolved that the American Bar Association be urged to bring about early decisions among members of the profession, on the most desirable forms of printed court reports and other legal publications, with the view to eliminating as many as possible of those that are considered less desirable."

The date of the next meeting of the Association was set for December 4th.

Adelaide Hasse Addresses the Law Librarians' Society of Washington, D. C.

THE LAW LIBRARIANS' SOCIETY OF WASHINGTON, D. C., met on Wednesday evening, October 11, 1939, in Hearing Room Number Six of the United States Board of Tax Appeals. John T. Vance, Law Librarian of Congress and President of the Association, introduced Miss Adelaide Hasse, who read a paper with the engaging title, "The Lay Librarian Among Law Books." Miss Hasse, who is Library Consultant to the Legal Counsel of the Federal Works Agency, in developing her topic gave examples of "large and rich deposits of useable reference data in legal literature" which "are closed to the layman." She stressed the great need for "unfreezing" this material valuable for economic and social research as well as for bibliographical purposes . . . "which lies frozen in the great mass of case law."

Law Books and Periodicals by Exchange and by Gift

THE AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF LAW LIBRARIES BOOK AND PERIODICAL EXCHANGE has been transferred from the University of California to the Washington University School of Law Library, St. Louis, Missouri. The files of the Exchange, under the direction of Eunice Cox, Law Librarian of Washington University, are in working order and law libraries are urged to send in lists of their wants and duplicates. The Exchange requests that such lists be sent to it on 3 x 5 slips or cards, listing each want or duplicate separately. Here is a suggested form. It may be enlarged upon to fit the various materials. When

Author	Want or Duplicate
Title
Volume	Number

the Exchange notes that a want matches a duplicate, it will notify the participating libraries involved. Such libraries will then negotiate an exchange between themselves. Please notify the Exchange of all completed transactions so that the cards for such material may be withdrawn from its files.

THE LOS ANGELES COUNTY LAW LIBRARY will gladly send a copy of its 1912 printed catalog to any library requesting it. The catalog consists of author and subject indexes for textbooks, and of lists of reports, digests and statutes by jurisdictions. It may be of interest to some as showing the extent of the collection of an important Pacific Coast law library just prior to the World War of 1914. Address requests to Howard Jay Graham, Accessions Librarian, 703 Hall of Records, Los Angeles, California.

ALBERT S. OSBORN, the well-known author of the three books, all of interest to lawyers, QUESTIONED DOCUMENTS, THE PROBLEM OF PROOF and THE MIND OF THE JUROR, informs us that the first of these books is out-of-print. Mr. Osborn states that it is his desire that the other two books should be in all the law libraries of the American Association of Law Libraries. If the librarians, of those libraries which do not already have these two books, will communicate with the author, at 233 Broadway, New York City, the books will be sent with his compliments.

LAW LIBRARIANSHIP COURSE OFFERED AT UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

THE University of Washington School of Librarianship announces a new one-year course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in Law Librarianship. It is a cooperative project with the University of Washington Law School. The students are selected by the dean of the law school and the law librarian from graduates who have completed the law course at the University of Washington Law School, or from institutions of equal standards and who can qualify for admission to the School of Librarianship. This requires a reading knowledge of at least one modern foreign language (20 hours college work) and in some instances two foreign languages, together with a B average in undergraduate work. The rigidity of the B average may in some instances be relaxed. Personality and general adaptation for law library work will form an important part in the selection of candidates for the new course.

The curriculum consists of courses in Classification and Cataloging, Bibliography and Reference, History of Books and Libraries, Advanced Legal Bibliography, Ordering and Accessioning of Law Books, Legal Reference and Research, and Law Library Administration. The course in Classification and Cataloging is conducted by Professor Marie Alfonso; Bibliography and Reference, by Mrs. Alfonso and Professor Charles W. Smith, who is also Librarian of the University of Washington Library; John S. Richards, Lecturer in Librarianship and Executive Assistant of the University of Washington Library, gives the course in History of Books; Dr. Arthur S. Beardsley, Law Librarian and Professor of Law of the University of Washington, and President of the American Association of Law Libraries, conducts the courses in Advanced Legal Bibliography, Legal Reference and Research, and Law Library Administration.

Registration is limited to not more than five students. For further information, write the School of Librarianship, University of Washington, Seattle, Washington.

CURRENT LEGAL THOUGHT, beginning with Volume 5, number 1 (October, 1939), has added a new department to its magazine. Entitled Judicial Trends, this new section of CURRENT LEGAL THOUGHT gives analyses of recent decisions.

THE CENTRAL BOOK COMPANY of New York recently purchased the rare book business of Luther M. Cornwall, 723-11th Street N. W., Washington, D. C. The business, which will be conducted in the name of Luther M. Cornwall Company, will specialize in political science materials, legal biography, constitutional law, international law, jurisprudence and out-of-print government publications.
